Quality is more than our business. It’s our passion.

We pursue quality in everything we do. We strive to produce and deliver data that you can count on, and we’ve made a commitment to keep improving every day. That’s why we created our Quality Program.

Tell us when we’ve missed the mark

If you find a qualifying data omission or discrepancy in our corporate, market or financial information, we want to be the first to know about it. We run over 155,000 automated data quality checks, and content is reviewed multiple times before publishing. If something seems off in our data, please let us know.

A data quality issue is public company data or proprietary data that:
- Is incomplete
- Has not been updated within our standard timelines
- Contains textual errors or typos resulting in incorrect content
- Contains inaccurate numbers in financial fields or ratios

The Quality Program does not cover:
- Regulated content
- Non-public information
- Private company data in the S&P Capital IQ platform

$50 rewards for verified data mistakes and omissions

We offer clients a $50 reward for each data quality issue that is successfully validated. For each data discrepancy that is verified, you can choose to receive the reward in one of two ways:
- A digital gift card
- A donation in the amount of the reward through the S&P Global Corporate Responsibility department

Multiple rewards may be aggregated and distributed in a lump sum.

We take your feedback seriously

To report a data discrepancy and participate in our Quality Program, contact our support team at support.mi@spglobal.com or clientsupport@capitaliq.com.
