Summary

- Australian large caps were down 2.5% in May, erasing their gains for the quarter and then some. Mid caps outperformed while small caps lagged their blue-chip peers, with the S&P/ASX MidCap 50 flat for the month and the S&P/ASX Small Ordinaries shedding 3.3%.
- Across the Tasman Sea, New Zealand's S&P/NZX 50 Portfolio fared better than its counterpart in Australia, closing flat in May after the Reserve Banks of New Zealand signaled an end to its tightening cycle. Small caps sharply outperformed, with the S&P/NZX SmallCap Index adding 1.6%.
- S&P/ASX 200 Information Technology was the best performing sector in May, up 11.6%, while Consumer Discretionary lagged, down 6.1%.
- All our reported Australian equity factor indices closed in the red for May, with Low Volatility holding up best, slipping 1.6%. At the other end of the spectrum, Shareholder Yield gave up 5.7%.
- Fixed income sold off in both Australia and New Zealand, but all our reported fixed income indices are still holding on to robust YTD gains.
- Australian equity implied volatility edged slightly higher in May, with the S&P/ASX 200 VIX® Index closing May at 13, 1 point above its level at the previous month end.

Performance Disclosure

Charts and graphs are provided for illustrative purposes. Past performance is not an indication or guarantee of future results. The charts and graphs may reflect hypothetical historical performance. All information presented prior to the launch date is back-tested. Back-tested performance is not actual performance, but is hypothetical. The back-test calculations are based on the same methodology that was in effect when the index(es) was officially launched. However, it should be noted that the historic calculations of an Economic Index may change from month to month based on revisions to the underlying economic data used in the calculation of the index. Complete index methodology details are available at www.spdji.com. It is not possible to invest directly in any index.

S&P Dow Jones Indices defines various dates to assist our clients in providing transparency on their products. The First Value Date is the first day for which there is a calculated value (either live or back-tested) for a given index. The Base Date is the date at which a given index is set at a fixed value for calculation purposes. The Launch Date designates the date upon which the values of a given index are first considered live: index values provided for any date or time period prior to the index's Launch Date are considered back-tested. S&P Dow Jones Indices defines the Launch Date as the date by which the values of an index are known to have been released to the public, for example via S&P Dow Jones Indices's public website or its datafeed to external parties. For Dow Jones-branded indices introduced prior to May 31, 2013, the Launch Date (which prior to May 31, 2013, was termed "Date of introduction") is set at a date upon which no further changes were permitted to be made to the index methodology, but that may have been prior to the index's public release date. Prospective application of the methodology used to construct the index(es) as well as revisions to economic data may not result in performance commensurate with the back-test returns shown. The back-test period does not necessarily
